Can you make your own house in the style of 1666?

Can you find out what materials were used to make the real houses and try and make your own house with any resources you may have at home! Can you add fire and flames for extra details?

If you would like to do some more Fire of London activities, why not try some of the following...

- Make a poster comparing today's houses and those in 1666.
- Start writing your own diary like Samuel Pepys. Record everything you do over the next few weeks and how you feel.
- Research how we keep our homes safe from fire today.
- Make a fact file on some of the famous people alive in 1666 (Thomas Farriner, Samuel Pepys, Sir Christopher Wren, King Charles II).

Make sure you take lots of photographs and put them in your Home Learning book. Have fun!
